

cused; it is he that has most to lose. Of course, our sympathies must be affected by our convictions as to the person guilty; but until Beecher is proved guilty, it is no more than just to believe him innocent.

LITERARY NOTES.

The second volume in Scribner, Armstrong & Co.'s "Brics-Brac" series is just out. Like the first, it is prettily bound and printed, and also like the first, it is full of interest. Thackeray and Dickens are the heroes of this volume. No other book yet published contains so many authentic memorials of Thackeray, a "life" of the great novelist having not yet appeared. The stories of Dickens are gathered from every quarter, except the Forster biography. This is just the book for消夏 summer reading and we are not surprised to learn that the series is proving a marked success.

HARPS.

He who thinks that harps have gone out of fashion, is very much mistaken. To be sure it is a long time since the harp through Tara's halls the soul of music shed, but that delightful old instrument still lives. There is a place on Houston street in this city where harps are manufactured, and it is, I believe, the only place of the kind in this country. In the first place it makes a rich accompaniment to the voice and in the second, it displays a beautiful hand and arm to such advantage. The harp is an expensive instrument, ranging in price from $350 to $1,000. Those that sell at $250, are single action instruments, that is, they can only be played in one key. The double action harps are of course the more desirable and also the more expensive; the average price, however, is about $500. There is an air of romance about the harp that we miss in other instruments, unless it is the violin, it is so graceful and picturesque.

"Change cars" is what a city bootblack said to a countryman; the other day when he had finished blacking one of his boots.

"Had you, sir?" said Henry Erskine to a dilatory carpenter, "been to build the ark, we should not have had the flood yet."

If you wish to know how many friends you have, get into office; if you wish to know how many you haven't, get into trouble.

The Home Garden &amp;c.

The white of an egg has proved of late the most efficacious remedy for burns.

Bees are of great value to the fruit-grower, and should be more generally cared for and kept in and near orchards.

There must be an interchange of the plants of flowers to make them productive and we must depend on the insect for this service.

A father gives this bit of advice, which contains a good hint: "If you want the boys to stay on the farm, don't bear on the grindstone."

When you make a mustard plaster use no water whatever, but mix the mustard with the white of an egg and the result will be a plaster that will "draw" perfectly, but will not produce a blister even upon the skin of an infant, no matter how long it is allowed to remain upon the part.

If one portion of vegetables be boiled in pure distilled or rain water and another in water in which a little salt has been added, a difference is perceptible in the tenor of the food. Vegetables boiled in pure water are vastly inferior in flavor.

No APPETITE FOR BREAKFAST.—No judicious parent would let a child go to school without breakfast. If there is a habitual lack of appetite in the morning there is surely some difficulty behind it, and it will inevitably lead to greater difficulties in the future. An breakfast should be a lunch in the forenoon, a lunch meant no appetite for dinner, little dinner means a hearty supper and no appetite next again morning. Insist on a light supper, early rest at night, and allow no time for any excursion to proceed unless some time can be taken. The habit will soon be formed, or there is some serious disorder which needs the co-operation of a good physician.

POULTRY HINTS.—To be successful in raising chickens several things are necessary, never set a hen in a house above the ground, but in the ground. If a person is so situated that the hen can't be set on the ground, fill the nest with a six inch deep well of fresh earth, and place the nest on that, and at the end of the first week, wash them in milk warm water; do the same at the end of the second week; and if the eggs are impregnated, every one will hatch. If an egg is broken and the other eggs get scattered over with it, the other eggs so scattered will not hatch unless washed clean. Eggs require a certain amount of moisture, so as to hatch well. When the chickens are hatched, confine them for twenty four hours and feed them after that feed with the yolk of hard boiled eggs for two or three days, then with mush without salt for a few days more, then feed with meal and water. Try these hints and you'll find this information is worth five years' subscription to this paper. —Vermont Chronicle.

PROPOSALS will be received until the 1st August, by the Trustees of the Central Union School District, for Jesters to take care of the Central School House, and to dust it 8 times a week to make the fire to keep the premises in order, and do all that such an office shall require for one year.

Any information that may be wished, can be obtained from the subscriber.

A MEDICINE CHEST IN MINIATURE.

Mishler's Herb Bitters is not a beverage, but a strictly medicinal preparation more thoroughly adapted to the wants of the general public than any other. It is prepared under the direction of an eminent physician. B. H. Hartman, M. D., the senior professor in the Medical College of Philadelphia, and a practical physician of extensive experience and extensive practice. In such a preparation, we are assured that Mishler's Herb Bitters is compounded in strict accordance with correct Pharmaceutical principles.

His luminescent sale is conclusive proof that it possesses merit of a high order. Merchants, doctors, lawyers, clerks and others engaged in mercantile pursuits, are impudent in their conduct, and it is, I believe, the only place of the kind in this country. In the first place it makes a rich accompaniment to the voice and in the second, it displays a beautiful hand and arm to such advantage.
